

Corrosion Protection

Description

In today's globalised world with long international ways of transport and storage times, extreme corrosive influences affect construction parts manufactured in metal working, e.g. semi-finished products or automotive components.

Dutco offers a product range which is especially tailored to these requirements. These cover solvent, oil and water based products for various applications where temporary corrosion protection is required. In addition, we offer a high-performance range of industrial products for cleaning all types of process agents applied in cutting and non-cutting metal working operations.
